A: After reading @Jeremy's answer, I looked at a similar code and determined that the issue could be tracked by indexing the headings. In the solution, I've added a for loop that goes through the document titles and determines the index by comparing the title with the headline text. The index is added to a list that is created on the fly. The list is then used to index into the publication dates. Lastly, the publication dates are compared with the current dates to determine if there are any older publications in the list. If so, they are replaced with an older date.
